Tools to help guide transfer to the next generation of landowners when you plant tree seedlings to when you harvest timber. I've developed a sequence to follow forestestate planning. The major reason you need to follow this sequence is because this is a long-termplan. Most of us don't live long enough to see theplan come to its culmination. The forest does, butyou don't. This is the first thing: develop a forestmanagementplan. You can be assisted by a Stateforestry agency to help you do one, or you can payfor a consulting forester to do it for you. Make sure the plan reflects your goals, not your planners goals. If its a good plan, its going to show a progression even if you're not around. My second step is, once you have a plan, put an easement on it. That will make sure that whoever owns the land continues to manage it in a way that reflects your original plan. The third step is: develop an estate plan so that whoever gets that land will comply with your management plan. The most important reason for the estate plan is to avoid encumbrances such as inheritance taxes. Without an estate plan, your heirs sometimes have to sell part of the land just to pay for the taxes. Mike Greenheck (MN): Of course I would recommend estate planning. It eliminates the possibility of losing the property or taking it out of the family. A lot of my family members do a lot of work on the...
