The scriptures never mention this bishoprick of Timothy. 2. We have already found that there were elders, in the plural, and that these were the bishops of the Ephesian Church. If, therefore, Timothy was one of these, he was not a diocesan, but a presbyterian bishop. Yet even this cannot be proved. For though when Paul went into Macedonia, he left Timothy at Ephesus, the latter did not remain there even one year: as is distinctly proved from Acts xx. 1--4. Nor does it appear that Timothy, from that time, had any more connection with the church at Ephesus, than with the other churches which he had in like manner visited. J Actj xir. 23. f 1 Tim. ir. 14. fl 2 Tim. i. 6. 8 Tim. ir. fc (7.) But if Timothy was not a bishop, was not Titos, who ordained elders in...
